Fall Athletics

While many local colleges have banned tailgating and other traditions this fall athletic season, there are still other activities and alternatives to participate in, such as "homegating." Try moving activities and traditions that feature large gatherings inside with small groups of people instead.

Fanzones are a good alternative to attending sports events in person. Some colleges and national sporting leagues have set up fanzones so that their fans can still feel involved.

Fall Celebration Guidelines

While celebrating the holidays this year is important to many, it is vital to protect yourself and others by physically distancing yourself, wearing a mask, and washing your hands often.

Low Risk Activities for Halloween

- Carving pumpkins with friends and family
- Decorate your living space
- Have a Halloween scavenger hunt

Moderate Risk Activities for Halloween

- Visit pumpkin patches/orchards
- Attend trunk-or-treats
- Prepare goodie bags

For more activities, check the VDH and CDC's guides.

Low Risk Activities for Día de los Muertos

- Prepare family recipes
- Play music for your deceased loved ones
- Make an altar for your deceased loved ones

Moderate Risk Activities for Día de los Muertos

- Host/attend a small dinner with family and friends
- Visit or decorate the graves of loved ones
- Have a small, outdoor parade

For more activities for Día de los Muertos and other holidays, check the CDC's guide.
